About the National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence (NCADD):

Founded in 1944, NCADD and its National Network of Affiliates is a voluntary health organization dedicated to fighting the Nation’s #1 health problem – alcoholism and drug addiction and the devastating consequences of alcohol and other drugs on individuals, families and communities.
A Brief History of NCADD’s Alcohol Awareness Month:

Founded and sponsored by NCADD, Alcohol Awareness Month was established in 1987 to help reduce the stigma so often associated with alcoholism by encouraging communities to reach out to the American public each April with information about alcohol, alcoholism and recovery. Alcoholism is a chronic, progressive disease, genetically predisposed and fatal if untreated. However, people can and do recover. In fact, it is estimated that as many as 20 million individuals and family members are living lives in recovery.

An integral part of NCADD’s Alcohol Awareness Month is Alcohol-Free Weekend, which takes place on the first weekend of April (April 3-5, 2015) to raise public awareness about the use of alcohol and how it may be affecting individuals, families, businesses and our communities.

During Alcohol-Free Weekend, NCADD extends an open invitation to all Americans to engage in three alcohol-free days. Those individuals or families who experience difficulty or discomfort in this 72-hour experiment are urged to contact local NCADD Affiliates, Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) or Al-Anon to learn more about alcoholism and its early symptoms.

About the Theme:

The 2015 theme, “For the Health of It: Early Education on Alcoholism and Addiction,” is designed to draw attention to the need for early education to give kids a better understanding of the impact that alcohol can have on their lives. Reducing underage drinking is critical to securing a healthy future for America’s youth and in a society that continually promotes alcohol and drug use at every level, the need to provide education on the dangers of alcohol and/or drug abuse and its effects on children has never been greater.

NCADD is often the first call people make when difficulties with alcoholism and drug dependence strike. Uniquely positioned in communities across the country, NCADD and its network of local affiliates provide direct help and assistance to millions of individuals and families through education, prevention, intervention, information/referral, treatment and recovery support services.

NCADD’s National Network of Affiliates and other NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month supporting organizations across the country will use this theme as a way of addressing the Nation’s #1 public health problem through a broad range of media strategies, awareness campaigns, programs and events in their local communities.

“For the Health of It: Early Education on Alcoholism and Addiction”

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS
FOR USING NCADD ALCOHOL AWARENESS MONTH KIT

1) Adaptation and Reproduction Permission: All of the materials may be reproduced or adapted to your own needs and distributed within your community without permission. An acknowledgment of the National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence, Inc. (NCADD) as the founder and sponsor of NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month and identification of our website (www.ncadd.org) as an information resource is required.

2) Distribution: Distribute materials to other organizations and local print media to begin generating early community interest in NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month.

3) Localize Materials: Add local information to the sample proclamation and press materials to greatly increase their appeal for officials and media in your community.

4) Time Line: The following time line may be helpful in using this kit:

FEBRUARY: Customize materials for use in your community; identify public official to issue proclamation; begin planning suggested grassroots activities or develop your own activities; place camera-ready advertisements.

LATE FEBRUARY: Submit live copy PSAs to radio stations.

MARCH: Adapt sample proclamation and press materials for local use; plan proclamation ceremony or press event to kick-off NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month; distribute media advisory and news release; make follow-up phone calls to media.

APRIL: Publicize each of your NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month activities to target audiences; submit letter to the editor and op-ed piece.
PROCLAMATION:
NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month

Issuing a proclamation on behalf of your city, county, town, or State is an important tool in raising awareness for Alcohol Awareness Month. A proclamation is an official announcement that publicly recognizes an initiative such as Alcohol Awareness Month. Proclamations are typically signed and issued by Federal officials, governors, State legislators, or other government officials at the local level. By issuing a proclamation designating April as Alcohol Awareness Month, your community will bring attention to the problems of underage drinking, alcoholism and alcohol-use disorders and spread the message that early education about alcoholism and addiction saves lives.

Instructions for use:

1) Select Officials: Make a list of top public officials and other leaders in your community who have expressed concern about alcohol problems. Decide who would attract the most press coverage.

2) Local Relevance: Make the proclamation as relevant to your community as possible by adding local statistics to the sample below. You will have a much better chance of enlisting the support of a local public official.

3) Who to Contact: If anyone in your organization knows the person you want to issue the proclamation, have that individual send it directly to the official, then follow up with a phone call. If you don't have a personal contact, send the proclamation to the individual’s press representative or community affairs liaison with a cover letter explaining your request and the activities that you have planned for NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month.

4) Other Community Organizations: Contact other concerned organizations in your community and ask them to participate in NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month. Ask them to send letters to the official urging him/her to issue a proclamation.

5) Final Draft and Reproduction: Once an official agrees to issue the proclamation, work with his/her office on a final draft. Reproduce the proclamation as large as possible for use as a prop on television.

6) Electronic Copy: Request a digital or electronic copy for use on your website, newsletter, with press releases, etc. Please send a copy of the proclamation to NCADD (see end of Sample Proclamation for contact information).

7) Press Conference and Photos: Schedule a press conference and/or photo opportunity with the official for the last week in March to announce NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month in your community. Use the event to highlight a successful local prevention program for youth and to publicize other activities you have planned. Invite local health, law enforcement and educational professionals to participate. Have someone take photos and post photos on your website, add to your newsletter and send to NCADD with names/titles of individuals in photo.
WHEREAS, alcohol is a primary factor in the four leading causes of death for young persons ages 10-21; and

WHEREAS, alcohol is the most commonly used addictive substance in the United States; and

WHEREAS, young people who begin drinking before age 15 are four times more likely to develop alcohol dependence than those who begin drinking at age 21; and

WHEREAS, more than 7 million children live in a household where at least one parent is dependent on or has abused alcohol; and

WHEREAS, the typical American will see 100,000 beer commercials before he or she turns 18; and

WHEREAS, one in every 12 adults (17.6 million people) suffers from alcohol abuse or dependence; and

WHEREAS, more than half of all adults have a family history of alcoholism or problem drinking; and

WHEREAS, 100,000 persons die each year from alcohol-related causes: drinking and driving crashes, other accidents, falls, fires, alcohol-related homicides and suicides; and

WHEREAS, alcohol-related problems cost America $224 billion ($746 per person) in lost productivity, absenteeism, healthcare costs, crime and family-related problems.

THEREFORE, I, (INSERT NAME OF LOCAL PUBLIC OFFICIAL) now join the National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence, Inc. (NCADD) and do hereby proclaim that April 2015 is Alcohol Awareness Month in (INSERT NAME OF AREA GOVERNED BY LOCAL PUBLIC OFFICIAL). As the (INSERT TITLE OF LOCAL PUBLIC OFFICIAL), I also call upon all citizens, parents, governmental agencies, public and private institutions, businesses, hospitals, schools and colleges in (REPEAT NAME OF AREA) to support efforts that will provide early education about alcoholism and addiction and increase support for individuals and families coping with alcoholism. Through these efforts, together, we can provide Hope, Help and Healing for those in our community who are facing challenges with alcohol use and abuse.

May it be so decreed.

MEDIA ADVISORY:
NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month

Conducting media outreach and securing media placements are valuable ways to spread awareness about Alcohol Awareness Month and build interest in your event. Any form of media coverage for your event will highlight your efforts within the community and draw attention to the participants, volunteers, and sponsors of your event. Through media support, the local community is exposed to the Alcohol Awareness Month message that prevention works, treatment is effective, and people can and do recover.

Instructions for use of Media Advisory:

1) Localize Media Advisory: Substitute local information in the media advisory below, reproduce copies on your letterhead or news release paper and use it to alert the media to your NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month proclamation ceremony.

2) Distribute Advisory: Send the media advisory to the city desks of your local newspapers and to the assignment editors at your local radio and television stations. Be sure that they receive the advisory at least two days before the event.

3) Media Follow-Up: Call the media before your event to make sure that they received the advisory and try to persuade them to cover the event. Call the day before to remind them and answer any last minute questions.

ALCOHOL-FREE WEEKEND TO BE OBSERVED APRIL 3-5, 2015

Alcohol-Free Weekend, traditionally observed during NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month in April, is scheduled for April 3-5, 2015.

Alcohol Awareness Month, founded and sponsored by The National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence, Inc. (NCADD) since 1987, is a national grassroots effort observed by communities throughout the United States to support prevention, research, education, intervention, treatment and recovery from alcoholism and alcohol-related problems.

During Alcohol-Free Weekend (April 3-5, 2015), NCADD and (INSERT NAME OF YOUR ORGANIZATION) ask parents and other adults to abstain from drinking alcoholic beverages for a 72-hour period to demonstrate that alcohol isn’t necessary to have a good time. If participants find it difficult to go without alcohol during this period, they are urged to call (INSERT YOUR PHONE NUMBER) for information about alcoholism.

(INsert paragraph about what your organization is doing to help the community observe alcohol-free weekend)

NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month offers community organizations concerned about individuals, families and children an opportunity to work together to not only raise awareness and understanding about the negative consequences of alcohol use, but to highlight the need for local action and services focused on prevention, treatment and recovery.

:30 Radio Public Service Announcements:

NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month

Public service announcements (PSAs) encourage individuals in need of treatment and recovery services to seek help. Distribute the live-read PSA scripts to local radio stations to promote Alcohol Awareness Month. You can identify which stations are most appropriate for your target audience, considering demographic data such as age, gender, race, and location.

Instructions for use:

1) Localize PSA: Adapt any or all of the “live copy” radio scripts for local use.

2) Finalize Script: Type each script, double-spaced, on your letterhead with the name of a contact person from your organization.

3) Distribution of PSAs: Try to submit scripts to radio public service directors in your community by mid-late February. Your chances of getting them aired may increase if you give each radio station a different set of scripts.

4) Media Follow-Up: Follow up with a phone call to the public service director 3-5 days after you submit the scripts asking if they have arrived and if broadcast during April will be possible.
5) Media Reminder: If the public service director was receptive to your first phone call, follow up with an additional call in late March to remind him/her of the PSA.

6) Thank You: Send a thank you note to the manager of any radio station that airs one of your PSAs.

OP-ED NEWSPAPER ARTICLE:
NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month

Writing and placing an op-ed or bylined piece in a print or online media outlet can be critical to raising awareness for Alcohol Awareness Month. An op-ed is a way for you to express your opinion and perspective on a certain subject or initiative. To gain additional attention for your op-ed, reach out to well-known organizations in your community and offer to co-write an op-ed or online article with them. Having an established partner might catch the eye of an editor and increase the chances that your op-ed is published.

Instructions for use:

1) Contact Person: Call the editorial page of the most widely circulated newspaper/media outlet in your city. Ask if they accept “op-ed” pieces and find out the name of the person to whom they should be directed.

2) Write Op-Ed: Type the sample cover letter, on your organization’s letterhead, for signature by one of your board members or the head of your organization. Type the sample op-ed double-spaced on blank paper. Submit both the cover letter and the op-ed to the appropriate person.

3) Follow-Up: Follow up with a phone call to the appropriate person several days later. Ask if the op-ed has arrived and whether it is being considered for publication.

4) Denied, Try Again: If your initial attempt is unsuccessful, repeat the process with other newspapers/media outlets in your area, but make sure that no more than one newspaper/media outlet at a time is considering your op ed. If one does not agree to publish it, submit the op-ed to other newspapers/media outlets.

5) Copies to NCADD: Send copies of any related press or published op-eds (as e-mail attachments preferred) to:

NCADD ALCOHOL AWARENESS MONTH 2015
For the Health of It: Early Education on Alcoholism and Addiction

Dear Editor:

April 2015 is NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month and thousands of communities across the country are joining together to focus on underage drinking and its effect on individuals, families and communities. For some, alcoholism and addiction develop at an early age, requiring intervention, treatment and recovery support. (INSERT NAME OF YOUR ORGANIZATION) believes that early education about alcoholism and addiction is a necessary component in keeping kids healthy, and it starts with the parents of (INSERT NAME OF YOUR COMMUNITY).

We hope that you will consider publishing the enclosed op-ed piece to stimulate discussion about one of the most important public health issues in (INSERT NAME OF YOUR COMMUNITY).

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

(INSET NAME & TITLE)
(INSET NAME OF ORGANIZATION)

SAMPLE OP-ED:

For the Health of It

In a society that continually promotes alcohol and drug use at every level -- even here in (ADD NAME OF COMMUNITY) -- the need to provide education on the dangers of alcohol and drug abuse and its effect on children has never been greater. We believe education on this critical threat to the health of our community needs to begin as early as possible in people’s lives. Properly educated, children and youth are much more resistant to these dangers and better able to make healthy choices about substance use.

Alcohol and drug use tends to begin in mid-to-late adolescence, and the earlier the age at which someone starts drinking the greater the risk that he or she will develop alcohol-related problems later in life. Yet a delay in drinking until the age of 21 greatly reduces the risk of developing alcohol-related problems.

Various factors can contribute to underage drinking, from insecurity to a desire for social acceptance, and while the percentage of teenagers who drink alcohol is slowly declining, numbers are still quite high. Nearly 30 percent of adolescents report drinking by 8th grade, and 54 percent report being drunk at least once by 12th grade.

Drinking alcohol undoubtedly is a part of American culture, as are conversations between parents and children about its risks and potential benefits. Alcohol’s differing effects and parents’ changing role in their children’s lives as they mature and seek greater independence can make talking about alcohol a challenge and parents may have trouble setting concrete family policies for alcohol use.

Yet, parents are the most effective force in preventing and reducing adolescent risky behaviors and helping our nation’s youth lead healthier lives. Research shows that kids who learn about the dangers of alcohol and drugs at home are up to 50 percent less likely to use these substances than kids who don’t learn about such dangers from their parents.

Parents influence whether and when adolescents begin drinking as well as how their children drink. Family policies about adolescent drinking in the home and the way parents themselves drink are important.

So, what can parents do to help minimize the likelihood that their adolescent will choose to drink and that such drinking, if it does occur, will become problematic? U.S. Department of Health and Human Services studies have shown that it is important to:
Talk early and often, in developmentally appropriate ways, with children and teens about your concerns—and theirs—regarding alcohol. Adolescents who know their parents’ opinions about youth drinking are more likely to fall in line with their expectations.
Establish policies early on, and be consistent in setting expectations and enforcing rules. Adolescents do feel that parents should have a say in decisions about drinking, and they maintain this deference to parental authority as long as they perceive the message to be legitimate. Work with other parents to monitor where kids are gathering and what they are doing. Being involved in the lives of adolescents is key to keeping them safe.

With open, respectful communication and explanations of boundaries and expectations, parents can influence their children’s health. This is especially important in young people’s decisions regarding whether and how to drink—decisions that can have lifelong consequences.

Ultimately, there are many influences on whether an adolescent begins to drink alcohol at a young age, including a child’s home life and whether parents have talked with their children about rules for alcohol use. Whether an adolescent's peers drink alcohol also influences his or her choice about alcohol use and another powerful influence is the media: movies and television that depict alcohol use, music that includes lyrics about alcohol use, and advertisements for different brands of alcohol.

Reducing underage drinking is critical to securing a healthy future for America’s youth and requires a cooperative effort from parents, schools, community organizations, business leaders, government agencies, the entertainment industry, alcohol manufacturers/retailers and young people themselves.

“Underage drinking is a complex issue,” says Andrew Pucher, President and Chief Executive Officer of NCADD, “one that can only be solved through a sustained and cooperative effort. As a nation, we need to wake up to the reality that for some, alcoholism and addiction develop at a young age and that intervention, treatment, and recovery support are essential for them and their families.” Says Pucher, “We can’t afford to wait any longer.”

To this end, (NAME OF ORGANIZATION) is celebrating Alcohol Awareness Month this April by holding a variety of informational and educational events (OR NAME SPECIAL EVENT) to raise public awareness about underage drinking and to reduce the stigma often associated with alcoholism -- stigma that prevents millions of individuals and families from seeking help. A huge turn-out at these events will send a signal that (NAME OF COMMUNITY) embraces early education about alcoholism and addiction and wants to provide much-needed support.

I urge local businesses, community organizations, colleges, schools, administrators, and government agencies to get involved in these activities. These are small and easy steps to take, and they can make a tremendous difference in our community. We must continue our efforts to reach out to those who are most vulnerable and to help our next generation avoid the many problems that alcohol abuse and alcoholism can bring.

It’s our kids we’re talking about.

NCADD ALCOHOL AWARENESS MONTH 2015
For the Health of It: Early Education on Alcoholism and Addiction

Dear Editor:

This April is Alcohol Awareness Month. Founded and sponsored by the National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence, Inc. (NCADD) since 1987, this year’s theme is: “For the Health of It: Early Education on Alcoholism and Addiction.”

No other substance is more widely used and abused by America’s youth than alcohol, making alcoholism and alcohol-related problems the number one public health problem in the United States.

Addressing this issue requires a sustained and cooperative effort between parents, schools, colleges, community leaders, and our youth. The widespread prevalence of underage drinking and the negative consequences it creates remain a stubborn and destructive problem despite decades of efforts to combat it.

Yet, there are four areas that have proven to be effective in prevention of this problem:

1) Curtailing the availability of alcohol to underage populations;
2) Consistent enforcement of existing laws and regulations regarding alcohol purchase;
3) Changing cultural misconceptions and behaviors about alcohol use through education; and
4) Expanded access to treatment and recovery support for adolescents and their families.

But, time is running out. Studies reveal that alcohol consumption by adolescents results in brain damage – possibly permanent – and impairs intellectual development.

So, let’s get started. We can’t afford to wait any longer.
Sincerely,

(INSET NAME & TITLE)

SUGGESTED GRASSROOTS ACTIVITIES: NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month

Organizing an event for Alcohol Awareness Month is a great way to celebrate people in recovery, their families, and others throughout the community who make living in recovery possible. Events help unite those already in recovery and can broadly spread the message that prevention works, treatment is effective, and people can and do recover.

FOR STATES:

• Issue an Alcohol Awareness Month proclamation utilizing the theme, “For the Health of It: Early Education on Alcoholism and Addiction” (see sample proclamation) from the Governor’s Office.

FOR COMMUNITIES:

• Issue an Alcohol Awareness Month proclamation utilizing the theme “For the Health of It: Early Education on Alcoholism and Addiction” (see sample proclamation) from the Mayor’s Office.

• Offer public recognition to young people and community members who lead alcohol and other drug-free lifestyles.

• Observe “Alcohol-Free Weekend” (see sample news release). In some communities, family-oriented businesses provide discounts or free admission to members of the community who have signed a pledge to remain alcohol-free with an organization that works to prevent alcoholism and other drug addictions.

• Partner with local businesses (including fast food restaurants, book, video and music stores, movie theaters, skating rinks, bowling alleys and miniature golf courses) for alcohol-free youth events or promotions.

• Hold a “Town Hall Meeting on Underage Drinking” in your community.

• Schedule “Parent Empowerment Workshops” to raise awareness and understanding of issues of family recovery; to teach how adult role models both within and outside the family influence young people; to look at the effect of advertising; and to show how every parent can do his/her part to change social attitudes. The workshops will help parents maintain standards of conduct, let participants know that other parents support their standards and encourage community members to support and encourage recovery. They can be hosted by the PTA, churches, service clubs, and taken to local business. Hold them during the day, at lunch, at night or on weekends.
• Review school rules regarding the use of alcohol, paying particular attention to athletic codes, and determine if the rules are adequately enforced.

• Organize an Alcohol Awareness parade or rally.

• Counter the pressures on young people to drink alcohol through after-school programs, good recreational facilities, alternative programs for potential school drop-outs, job training, confidential health services and community service opportunities.

• Insert a list of self-help groups and local resources with public utility bills.

• Plan an Alcohol Awareness Month luncheon at a local hospital with guest speakers who represent the health community.

FOR MIDDLE AND HIGH SCHOOLS:

• Organize alcohol-free extracurricular activities, sporting events, dances and rock concerts, using promotional items such as t-shirts and hats, and promote them to other students as alcohol-free activities.

• Use liners in school cafeteria trays to promote Alcohol Awareness Month.

• Ask local grocery stores to provide quantities of grocery bags to schools and ask students to illustrate these bags with Alcohol Awareness Month messages. Return the illustrated bags to the grocery stores for use with customers during April.

• Raise money to support NCADD and NCADD Affiliates or for alcohol prevention curricula and public education campaigns through school walk-a-thons, raffles, athletic events, auctions, concerts, plant and rummage sales, and dinners.

• Guidance counselors can develop a checklist regarding college alcohol policies to assist students and parents in their selection of schools.

• Administrators can examine advertising solicited by the school, including student newspapers and yearbooks, to assure that there is a consistent and appropriate message regarding no use of alcohol. They can also examine policy that is used in the selection of favors for dances to assure that there is a consistent no-use message for people under age 21. If a change in these policies seems advisable, use Alcohol Awareness Month as an opportunity to announce them.

• Teachers can teach critical skills for watching television and understanding selling techniques and commercials during Alcohol Awareness Month. Ask students to clip print ads for alcoholic beverages and bring them to class for discussion. Students can learn that drinking isn’t a way to feel or be “independent.” Rather, students can learn that they are being “influenced” to drink and that independence from advertising influences really means not drinking. Also ask students to prepare a list of other “pro-drinking” influences, including sponsorships of sporting events and rock concerts, and promotional items such as t-shirts and hats.

FOR STUDENTS:

• Remember that use of alcohol is your decision and that drinking is not necessary for having a good time.
• Know that “Drinking Too Much Too Fast Can Kill You” and that alcohol poisoning, a drug overdose, is more common than many people think.

• Avoid situations where someone else’s alcohol consumption or other drug use may put you at risk.

• Always respect another person’s decision not to drink alcohol.

• If you are concerned about yourself, a friend or family member, call NCADD and our National Network of Affiliates TODAY! NCADD will connect you with someone who is specifically trained and successfully experienced in helping individuals and families dealing with alcohol-related problems.

FOR COLLEGES:

• Raise awareness of the fact that alcohol, the drug of choice for college students -- and binge drinking are key factors in academic and social problems on American campuses. Recognize the link between serious campus problems and alcohol: vandalism, date rape, poor academic performance, dropouts, injuries and death.

• Appoint a task force of school administrators, faculty, students, Greek system representatives and others to make recommendations for a broad range of policy and program changes to reduce alcohol- and other drug-related problems, and provide the resources necessary for implementing and promoting such changes.

• Provide maximum opportunities for students to live in an alcohol-free environment and to engage in stimulating, alcohol-free recreational and leisure activities. Increase programming and social activities at the beginning of the academic year when students may be more susceptible to high-risk drinking.

• Enforce a “zero tolerance” policy on the illegal consumption of alcohol by students both on and off campus and take steps to reduce the opportunities for students, faculty, staff and alumni to legally consume alcohol on campus by limiting places and times for drinking; prohibiting drunkenness; regulating conditions of use; and not sanctioning a “bar” on campus.

• Establish alcohol education programs on college campuses that include information on alcoholism prevention and treatment, and stress the non-use of alcohol as a healthy and viable option. Support programs and services, including housing for students in recovery is essential.

• Ban alcohol sales at sporting arenas, or establish alcohol-free seating sections.

• Eliminate alcoholic beverage advertising and promotion in all forms from university and college campuses, including alcohol industry sponsorship of college activities.

• Form “Town/Gown” alliances with community leaders to encourage commercial establishments that promote or sell alcoholic beverages to curtail illegal student access to alcohol and adopt responsible alcohol marketing and service practices.

• Encourage prevention efforts by having students and faculty direct studies in their discipline toward college drinking problems.
• Organize and promote alcohol-free activities during spring break.

FOR FRATERNITIES AND SORORITIES:

• Sponsor non-alcoholic rush or membership recruitment activities.

• Ban alcohol from events where minors are likely to be present.

FOR MEDIA:

• If you work for a radio or television station, do what you can to urge the owners to follow the leads of the major television networks who have agreed not to accept advertising for distilled spirits.

• Broadcast or publish relevant information about alcohol, alcohol problems, alcoholism and recovery (see radio PSAs, op-ed piece and letter to the editor).

• For a week-long period during NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month analyze all news stories for mention of alcohol. Aside from such obvious stories as alcohol-related traffic fatalities, pay particular attention to violent crime, domestic violence, sexual abuse, suicide and other social issues where use of alcohol is likely to be involved. Then do a “round-up” story about the negative consequences of alcohol consumption illustrated by the evidence in your community.

• Counter and challenge stereotyping and glamorization of members of the journalism and entertainment professions as hard-drinking “heroes” by identifying leaders of your profession who do not engage in these practices, and by reporting the lost health, careers and lives of those who do.

• Run a three-part series, run on successive days, starting with Sunday, focused on alcoholism and looks at the impact on the individual, the family and the community. The series must include first-hand stories of recovery from individuals and family members.

FOR RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATIONS AND GROUPS:

• Integrate alcohol issues into the ongoing religious education of young people.

• Encourage role models who have achieved success without using/abusing alcohol to participate in congregation-sponsored events.

• Allow use of your facilities for alternative youth activities, mentoring programs, parent training, stress management seminars, healthy lifestyles workshops and substance abuse prevention education sessions.

• Assemble an “NCADD Alcohol Awareness Month” bulletin board. Ask members of your congregation to bring in news clippings of alcohol-related incidents in your community. Tell them to look for mentions of alcohol, particularly in crime stories.

• Conduct a candlelight vigil or sponsor an Ecumenical Prayer Breakfast that focuses on the healing effects of treatment for all family members.

• Publish information about recovery programs in church bulletins.
• Religious groups can establish an “Amnesty Day/Week” at their houses of worship for youth who need help but are embarrassed, afraid or don’t know where to get it. Help and/or referrals can be provided confidentially and without fear of reprisal.

FOR PARENTS:

• Teach your child that abstinence from alcohol is an acceptable lifelong decision and that they have a right to stand up for a safe academic environment.

• Teach your child that drinking can be risky and to intervene when they see that their classmates are in trouble.

• If your child is of legal age to drink (21 in all states), explain to them how to use alcohol moderately (no more than two drinks per day for men, no more than one per day for women) and appropriately (as a complement to a meal and at social gatherings or during family celebrations).

• If you drink, be sure to set an ongoing healthy example regarding adult alcohol use and never brag about your use of alcohol or other drugs during your own college years.

• When helping your children to select an appropriate college, be willing to question officials about campus alcohol policies. The Best Colleges, an annual guide published by the Princeton Review, groups schools by categories (“Lots of beer,” “Lots of hard liquor,” “Major frat and sorority scene” and “Stone-cold sober schools”).

• When your children go to college, set clear and realistic expectations regarding academic performance, and continue to be as interested and involved in their lives as you were when they were in high school.

• If you are concerned about yourself, a friend or family member, call NCADD and our National Network of Affiliates TODAY! NCADD will connect you with someone who is specifically trained and successfully experienced in helping individuals and families dealing with alcohol-related problems.

Thoughts on Stigma
From NCADD’s Founder, Marty Mann:

“Few among you consider alcoholism a proper subject for open discussion, few among you would willingly label yourself, or a friend or colleague, an alcoholic, and even fewer would be able to recognize alcoholism early, when there is the best chance for recovery.

“All of this is the result of stigma, a state of mind which is essentially mindless since it overlooks all the things which have been learned; a state of mind which produces public attitudes that are anti-therapeutic to say the least. In bold language, Stigma Kills.

“Stigma manifests itself in many ways; in false beliefs, such as that alcoholism is a moral problem and alcoholics moral delinquents; or that alcoholism is simply a matter of will power and alcoholics are weaklings; or that alcoholism is a deliberate self-degradation and alcoholics are simply letting themselves slide downhill—‘throwing their lives away,’ or that alcoholism is only found among homeless indigent derelicts—‘Skid Row bums’; or finally, that alcoholism is a hopeless condition and alcoholics are all ‘hopelessdrunks’ (spoken as one word).

“The results of stigma are also many, and all are destructive. The family that has an alcoholic in its midst goes to great lengths to conceal this, and the fellow workers of the alcoholic—often including his immediate superiors—cover up for him, keep giving him ‘one more chance to straighten up.’ The friends, neighbors and others in more casual contact with the alcoholic carefully look the other way. All are participating in a great conspiracy of silence, many of them in the mistaken belief that they are protecting the alcoholic when actually they are preventing him from getting help.”
